

The tunnel up the garden ready for its new cover

First sunny windless day for moons! Cover on, left to warm up for a couple of hours (supple plastic)

All done, good ventilation all round which is what I and the leeks want!

When I step in the tunnel I walk down meaning I'm working from waist height...makes life easier!

Eating leeks for bring & buys coming through in the cold end of greenhouse in less than a month

I had another 70 used scaffolding boards delivered yesterday at Abbey Road allotments - these were as good as new so cost £6 each for a 13ft board – that's good - ideal for raised beds. I was the first to have raised beds on our site moons ago, since then people have seen the difference in my produce and theirs so now over half the site have raised beds

Went and did a talk down Marlow (Wilts) on Tuesday after the school kids Gardening Club, over 80 in the audience - talked for 90 mins and still didn't get it all in! They enjoyed it though, they don't drop off with me talking. Talking tomorrow at Hampshire DAs NVS seminar - Sherie Plumb is on first covering spuds then me covering compost - should be good

Kids Gardening Club on Tuesday, Anna had the kids collecting mole hills so they come back knackered! We can cope with them easier then...!

The school's rhubarb is coming through so it was covered with mole hill soil and leaf mold by the kids

My 8.8oz onions; one in my own compost and one in the best compost!

Once out the pots, plants and roots look similar but my compost holds together better (body), that'll do me!
