

It was a bit fresh on the plot today (Saturday)

My first selfie(!) at our trading sheds (rain stopped!)

Pot leek seed head plunged into a bucket of 1 part domestos to 50 parts water (10 mins)

I then wash the leek head out under cold water

The grass comes away easily

You should take away old flags (leaves) from the leek

This will leave a nice white base – there are roots already there!! Any non-white leeks are binned

I picked the last of my (autumn) raspberries

These will be cut back in February

My mate wants a dollop of rhubarb, so now is the time to slice...

A good chuck out as deep as you can get it

The compost and leaf mold bins need to be prepared for winter. The worms are still active, and I want them to stay that way over the winter

This is the bins ready for winter
